TalentSelection®
Workshop
Based on the behavioral interviewing process.

Hiring top talent requires more than good instincts. It requires a structured process, useful candidate assessment tools, and interviewers with the skills to gather the data needed to make the best hiring decisions. However, in many organizations, hiring is not strategic. Personal preferences and “gut feelings” result in a significant number of poor hires, hurting the organization’s ability to meet its business and financial goals.

Fortunately, there is a better way. The TalentSelection interview training workshop helps organizations implement a structured and efficient behavioral interviewing process to consistently select the right talent. The workshop also helps organizations manage unconscious bias that may get in the way of hiring diverse talent. Training hiring managers with the TalentSelection workshop will help you get the right people, with the right skills, in the right jobs.
